THE MAN OF THE HOUR

Written for The Manchester Journal

Give me the man, it matters not what His avocation may be,
Who hews to the line, with honest
heart,
In strict fidelity.

Give me the upright business man,
Whose measures, weights and wares
Are strictly based on the righteous plan.
Who scorns the tricky snares.

Give me the man of scholarly lore,
Of culture, soul and sense,
Who radiates truth, from every pore,
Unswayed by recompense.

Give me the statesman, noble and just,
Our destinies to guide,
Who counts his office a sacred trust,
No matter what betide.

Give me the man with a heart that throbs,
With red blood in his veins,
Who stands on his own feet; asks no
odds,
And never once complains.

Give me the man with poise and grace,
With lightning in his soul,
Who knows his needs, in the white-
heat race,
And strikes straight for the goal.

Give me the man, who is on the square
Can neither be bought or sold,
Who strikes hard at error, everywhere
With sword of purest gold.

Give me the man, who stands for the right,
Whose spirit never bends, Who's first in peace and the first to fight,
And first to make amends.

Give me the man, who is true to self,
And therefore true to all,
Whose loyal soul, is his chiefest wealth,
Who honors friendship's call.

There are hellish dangers, stalking forth—
Forth like the rising tide;
From east to the west, from south to the north,
O'er all the nation wide.

Give me the man, with a Spartan will,
The man who's Christ-like born,
With Justice and Love and Faith and Skill
To check the rising storm.

Give me the man, who has nerve and thought,
To use the surgeon's knife,
To cut to the core, the septic spot,
And save the nation's life.

The septic spot is INDUSTRIAL STRIFE;
As he who's just can see,
And BROTHERLY LOVE, is the only
knife,
Can set us sepsis free.

O! give us such men as these, great God!
Men of gigantic power,
Men able to stay Thy chastening rod,
In this momentous hour.

ALUMNI DAY AT NORWICH

Veterans of World War from the University to Appear in Uniform.

The committee in charge of the Centennial Celebration of the founding of Norwich University announce that Governor P. W. Clement will be the chief speaker of Alumni Day, Friday, October 11. Governor Clement will speak at the formal opening of the new cavalry stables which have been erected during the summer under the personal supervision of Colonel Frank Tompkins. Colonel Tompkins was the commander of the famous "Boston's Own" regiment, and is the cavalry officer who won nation-wide fame at the time of Villa's raid on Columbus.

The program for the day includes cavalry drill, the ceremony of guard mounting, review of the squadron by Governor Clement, with evening parade as a closing feature. Graduates and students in the service during the world war will appear in uniform; and since over 75 per cent of all graduates of military age wore the khaki, an interesting representation will be presented.

This year Norwich has the largest student enrollment in its history, and with the coming of alumni from all over the country and visitors from every section of the State, Alumni Day is expected to be a notable event of centennial week.

Watch the kidney secretions.

The discharge not excessive or in-

Contain no "brick-dust" sediment.

Doan's Kidney Pills are especially for weak kidneys.
Let a Manchester Depot citizen tell you how they work.

H. W. Rice, Manchester Depot, says:
"I suffered from a run down condition of my kidneys and my back also gave me quite a little trouble. I have to stand a great deal and I blame that for bringing on the trouble. I suffered from pain in my back, especially when I bent over or stooped. My kidneys were sluggish and the secretions were highly colored and scanty in passage. Somehow I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. I took two or three boxes and I haven't been troubled since."
